Table 4 = cell border configuration at cell level.

This table example is in the LaTeX ctable package, let us try to reproduce it.

	$H(Mu) + F_2$	H(Mu) + Cl ₂
β (H)	80.9°	83.2°
eta(Mu)	86.7°	87.7°

Table 5 = generated table, with header repeated on page break(s)

Header
1.1	1.2
2.1	2.2
3.1	3.2

Header
4.1	4.2
5.1	5.2
6.1	6.2
7.1	7.2
8.1	8.2
9.1	9.2
10.1	10.2

Table 6 = cell border and padding configuration at cell level.

This table example is in the LaTeX booktabs package, let us try to reproduce it.

Animal	Description	Price ($)
Gnat	per gram	13.65
	each	0.01
Gnu	stuffed	92.50
Emu	stuffed	33.33
Armadillo	frozen	8.99

Another way for the record, without even using a celltable... Not really better, as it would break if the two Gnat lines were longer (and broken).

	ltem
Animal	Description	Price ($)
Gnat	per gram	13.65
	each	0.01
Gnu	stuffed	92.50
Emu	stuffed	33.33
Armadillo	frozen	8.99

Test 7 = re-doing 4 without the enclosing parbox, which could be regarded as an overkill.

	H(Mu) + F ₂	$H(Mu) + Cl_2$
$\beta(H)$	80.9°	83.2°
$\beta(Mu)$	86.7°	87.7°

Test 8 = Let us not forget these cells are parboxes!
